EDUCATIONAL ACTIVITIES AND CHILD CARE FOR CHILDREN OF ALL AGES AT BALTIMORE ETHICAL SOCIETY

The children remain with the adults for the first part of the program, which includes a story for the children and the child in all of us, and then they go to their Sunday School room.

Our Sunday School teacher, Linda Joy Burke, is a well-known published poet and writer, and has long been active in education. Some thoughts about what she plans to bring to the BES program this year:

- Visuals for the classroom and lesson plans and reading that correlates with ethical principles;
- Students creating a portfolio of their experiences which they will take with them at the end of the year;
- Vocabulary building, dialogues, audio/video storytelling, journal keeping, drama, and collages.

And for the parents, while your children are in their Sunday School class, you will enjoy our platforms on topics varying from "Homelessness and Alienation" to "Environmental Ethics" to "Deluxe Jim Crow: Civil Rights and American Health Policy." After the presentation we have time for a question and answer period and then we join together for more casual conversation and snacks. We focus on human lives and relationships and explore what it means to live ethically as individuals, family members, and participants in the larger community.
